Types of Financial Aid

Financial assistance to attend college comes in many forms.

Federal Aid Programs—Federal programs are based on financial need. They are the largest single source of financial aid for college.

State Aid Programs—Most states support various aid programs (both need-based and merit). Generally, eligibility for state need-based programs follows the federal guidelines.

Grants and Scholarships—Awards based on merit or merit plus need. They don't have to be repaid.

Loans—Funds loaned through a lending institution or college. Interest rates vary by program. For federal loans, qualifying students—based on need—will not have to pay interest while in school. Loan programs also are available to eligible parents to help with college expenses of their qualifying children.

Military programs—The military offers several options to help you pay for college.

Work-study programs—Jobs that allow students to earn money toward their education while they are enrolled in school. Students can sometimes get jobs related to their program of study.

Working and Savings—As the cost of a college education rises, more students and parents will need to put money aside. Lots of college students have part-time jobs to help make ends meet.

Most people use a combination of these forms of aid to pay for college.

FAFSA-

If you are planning to file for financial aid, you and your parents will need pin numbers in order to fill in FAFSA online and to track your application. Go to www.pin.ed.gov. You will need to have your social security number and your e-mail address. You will need this pin number every year you are in college so keep it handy.

Most universities and colleges require students to complete this form. Contact your school for the date of a FAFSA night for help in completing this form. FAFSA determines qualifications for many grants, loans, and work-study programs.

You will need:

- *Completed 2012 income tax forms for the student and parents
- *Social security numbers
- *Driver's license numbers

Dear Scholarship Donor,

I am honored to be one of the recipients of the _____Scholarship. Thanks to your generous support I am the first in my family to attend college.

Growing up in a less privileged community has not only offered financial and academic challenges, but it has more importantly made me realize the value of a college education.

I have just begun my undergraduate career as a freshman at _____ College/University and can already report my academics off to a first-rate start. My plans at this stage are to complete a major in Political Science. _____ College/University offers one of the finest programs in the country and I consider myself fortunate to be able to attend.

Working as a volunteer in my community throughout my high school career, I enjoyed helping people who were uninformed about the community services available to them. I hope to be able to serve in a political position sometime in the future, where I might have more ability to help those less fortunate and under-represented.

Sincerely,

Once again, I offer my sincerest thanks for your continued generosity to the _____ Scholarship.
